THE EDIT

The wellness brand India was missing.

Series Seed Deck Aishwarya Chandrasekaran, Founder April 2026

01. The Problem — Part 1

The modern Indian woman can no longer rely on food alone for nutrition.

- The nuclear-family shift. Joint-family kitchens with multiple cooks have given way to dual-income nuclear households. Three home-cooked, nutritionally complete meals a day — once the default — has become aspirational.
- Food adulteration is real and widespread. Indian fruits, vegetables, dairy, and grains face documented, ongoing concerns: pesticide residues, heavy metal contamination, mislabeling, inconsistent micronutrient density. What you eat is not necessarily what you think you're eating.
- The micronutrient gap is documented. Urban Indian diets are increasingly carbohydrate-heavy, lower in iron-rich greens, low in B-complex vitamins, almost devoid of DHA. Even "well-fed" women enter pregnancy nutritionally deficient on key markers.

For an Indian woman planning a family, supplementation isn't optional. It's foundational.

Which makes the next question critical: what do you supplement with?

02. The Problem — Part 2

What does an Indian woman take when she's planning a family?

Today, her three real choices are:

- Pharma-coded prescriptions (Trimacare, Inatal, Pregomega) — feel like medicine, distributed by doctors, no brand connection
- Imported wellness brands (Ritual, Garden of Life, Pink Stork) — premium, but expensive, hard to access, no India context
- Ayurvedic options (Himalaya, Patanjali) — traditional framework, opaque sourcing, no transparency

None of these were built for the modern Indian woman — the one who knows she needs to supplement, but can't find anything she can trust.

03. The Insight — Why Now

The modern Indian woman has changed faster than the supplement market that's supposed to serve her.

- She researches before she buys — reads ingredient lists, looks up published studies
- She expects transparency — wants to know where ingredients come from, who formulated them
- She expects modern branding — wants packaging that belongs in her bathroom, not her first-aid kit
- She wants control over her health journey — preferring DTC subscription over pharmacy or doctor mediation
- She buys on Instagram, expects 2-day delivery, reviews everything

The Indian DTC wellness consumer is real and growing — but no prenatal/preconception/postnatal brand is built for her.

04. The Solution

The Edit is the answer.

A wellness brand that hasn't kept up with how modern Indian couples actually live — until now.

> Transparent ingredients. Gynaecologist-approved formulations. Honest claims backed by published science. Designed for every stage of building a family together — from preconception, where both partners matter, through pregnancy and the months after.
>
> Built in India. Made for them. Made because nothing else was.

Brand promise: Only what matters. For the stage you're in.

05. The Product

Three SKUs covering the full family-building journey:

Edit For Two (Hero SKU)

Couples preconception bundle. One box, two bottles. Edit For Her (egg quality, fertility) + Edit For Him (sperm quality, antioxidants).

Edit Prenatal

Comprehensive 18–25 ingredient prenatal supplement. Branded traceable ingredients (Quatrefolic methylfolate, life'sDHA algal DHA, Albion chelated minerals). All within ICMR RDA.

Edit Postnatal (Year 1 expansion, Month 9–12)

Postpartum recovery + lactation support.

Pricing: Rs.800–1,500/month per SKU. Couples bundle priced ~15% below buying separately.

06. Why The Edit Wins — The Competitive Gap

No Indian brand combines all seven of these. The Edit will.

Capability	Trimacare	Wellbeing Nutrition	Imported (Ritual, etc.)	Ayurvedic	The Edit
DTC subscription	❌ Doctor-channel	✅	✅ Imported	❌ Pharmacy	✅
Modern lifestyle branding	❌ Pharma-coded	✅	✅	❌	✅
Traceable branded ingredients	⚠️ Some	⚠️	✅	❌ Opaque	✅
Gynaecologist co-formulation	✅	❌	❌	❌	✅
Full family-building journey	❌ Prenatal only	❌ Not focused	⚠️ Some	❌	✅
Published-science claims	✅	⚠️	✅	❌	✅
Made in India + accessible price	✅	✅	❌	✅	✅

This is the white space.

07. The Market Opportunity

India is the largest reproductive health market in the world that nobody is building intentionally for.

TAM — Indian health & wellness market	$164B (2025) → $258B (2034), 5.14% CAGR
SAM — Indian prenatal + women's wellness supplements	Rs.5,000 Cr+, growing 12% CAGR
SOM — Premium DTC capture (3 years)	Rs.50–100 Cr annual revenue
Customer base	27M pregnancies/year + 5–8M couples actively TTC
Asia-Pacific share of global postpartum market	38.58% (largest regional share)

08. Business Model

Premium DTC subscription. Long customer lifecycle. Couples-driven AOV.

- Pricing: Rs.1,200/month per SKU (avg)
- Couples Bundle (hero): Rs.2,000/month — 2x AOV at zero new acquisition cost
- Customer journey: 15+ months (Preconception → Pregnancy) at launch; 27+ months once Postnatal launches
- Gross margin target: 70–75%
- CAC target: Rs.800–1,500 declining as brand awareness grows
- LTV / CAC: 5x+ over the full journey

09. Go-to-Market

Multi-channel acquisition, content-led trust building.

- Performance marketing — Meta + Google ads, urban metro 28–38 demographic
- Influencer collaborations — mom-creators, wellness creators, practicing gynaecologists with social presence
- Gynaecologist network — leveraging the co-founder's clinical credibility for medical referrals
- PR + content marketing — owning the "transparency" + "couples" narrative
- Editorial partnerships — wellness publications, Femina, Cosmo, women's media

Distribution: Direct from theedit.in (Shopify). Subscription-first, with one-time purchase option.

10. Early Validation

Where we are today (April 2026):

- ✅ Brand thesis locked — manifesto, positioning, product architecture defined
- ✅ Manufacturer discovery underway — Tanishq Lifecare + Brukem Life Care in active conversations
- ✅ Customer validation in progress — [X interviews completed, Y waitlist signups]
- ✅ Regulatory pathway clarified — FSSAI FSDU + Health Supplement endorsements
- ⏳ Gynaecologist co-founder search — 5–10 candidates being approached
- ⏳ Trademark filing — IP India Class 5 + 30 search underway

[Note for VCs: full data room available on request including customer interview transcripts, manufacturer LOIs, regulatory consultant assessment]

11. The Team

Aishwarya Chandrasekaran — Founder & CEO

Founded The Edit after personally experiencing the trust gap during her own family-building journey. Background in [to be filled]. The brand's voice and product vision.

Thambusamy T D (Thambu) — Co-Founder & Strategic Advisor

Founder of Lumen Marketing Company (CDRI-08 cognitive supplement, June 2026 launch) and RaceSims Solutions Pvt Ltd (India's pro-grade sim racing hardware). Two-decade track record across consumer + premium hardware brands. Brings deep supplements industry knowledge and operational scaling expertise.

Gynaecologist Co-Founder — To Be Named

Practicing OB-GYN co-founder leading clinical formulation. Search underway; expected to be announced before launch. Will hold founder-level equity, not advisory.

Founding Advisors — To Be Named

Industry advisors with DTC and consumer brand experience.

12. The Ask — Pre-Seed Round

Raising Rs.70–90L (~$85K–110K) at a [valuation TBD] pre-money valuation.

Use of funds (12-month runway)

Category	Allocation
Day 1 inventory (3 SKUs × MOQs)	Rs.12–15L
FSSAI consultant + lab testing + entity incorporation	Rs.4–7L
Brand identity, packaging, photography, website	Rs.6–10L
Tech stack + logistics + insurance + legal	Rs.3–7L
Marketing — 12 months runway (perf + influencer + PR + content)	Rs.25–40L
Founder + team runway (12 months) + working capital	Rs.13–20L
Total	Rs.70–90L

12-month milestones

- ✅ FSSAI FSDU + Health Supplement licenses approved
- ✅ Edit For Two + Edit Prenatal launched commercially
- ✅ 5,000+ paying customers
- ✅ Rs.5–8 Cr ARR run rate
- ✅ Edit Postnatal launched (Month 9–12)
- ✅ Series A preparation begins

13. The Vision

The Edit is a women's lifecycle wellness platform — not a prenatal company.

The brand walks with Indian families through every major stage of life:

```
Preconception → Pregnancy → Postpartum → Perimenopause → Menopause
   (Year 1)      (Year 1)     (Year 1)        (Year 3)        (Year 5)
```

Year 3–5 expansion into postpartum recovery, perimenopause, menopausal transition, and supplements for the next generation.

This is a Rs.500 Cr+ brand trajectory — built on the most defensible, most underserved demographic in Indian wellness: the modern Indian woman, across every stage of her family-building life.

14. Why Now. Why This Team. Why The Edit.

Why now: The modern Indian DTC consumer exists, the regulatory framework (FSSAI FSDU) is clear, supply chain partners are mature, and no premium brand owns this space.

Why this team: Founder lived the problem. Co-founder has built consumer + supplement brands at scale. Gynaecologist co-founder brings clinical credibility no aggregator competitor can match.

Why The Edit: Brand-led, gynaecologist-formulated, transparency-first, India-specific. The wellness brand the largest reproductive health market in the world has been waiting for.

Contact

Aishwarya Chandrasekaran Founder, The Edit Pvt Ltd (incorporation in progress)

📧 [contact email] 📱 [contact phone] 🌐 theedit.in (launching soon)